Programme

The course will include lectures to cover the theory and practice of dental and intraoral radiography. Practical sessions in small groups will allow delegates to take radiographs of teeth in dog and cat skulls. Cases will also be discussed.

All the processing of images will be indirect (CR) digital using PSP plates and scanners. Examples of DR scanners and CR sensors plus traditional film processing with a chairside developer will be available on-site. We will also have two hand-held, portable x-ray generators available on the day.

Notes will be provided along with a USB memory stick. Radiographs you take can be loaded onto your stick to take home. If you wish to bring a laptop there will be power outlets available.
